THE EVENING STAR. BEAUTY BREAKS TO A BARGAIN. WASHINGTON:

MONDAY June 1, 1891. CROSBY S. NOYES

THE EVENING STAR has the fullest Local Circulation of any Newspaper in the World. and as an Advertising Medium is worth more than all the other papers published in Intelligent Americans writing from Italy describe a state of intolerable distress existing broadly there which may end sooner or later in a political revolution, since that is the modern remedy for ills of every description. Italy would seem from all accounts to be enduring a load of taxation such as France bore under the ancient regime, when everything was taxed that the people had, including the meager quantity of mean bread they ate when they could get it and the right to the use of the necessary water for drink and for the preparation of the coarse food consumed. No wonder there is murmuring under breath and changes of cabinet and emigration by swarms and hordes to the Americas. The octroi or food-and-drink tax is not merely inquisitorial; it is a fearful burden upon the miserable poor, the larger part of the population of the southern provinces. population of the southern provinces. The severe taxation is necessary to maintain the monarchy and a state of preparation for war-costly luxuries for a new people sot the richest either in property or experience in constitutional government. If it were not for the high spirit of the nation such enormous burdens would not be borne a single year, for the entire peninsula seems bent on Italy's maintaining a place among the six great powers of Europe. The overthrow of the Crispi administration was a sign of revolt against the existing order, however. The people proclaimed their determination not to go so far or so fast as they had been going in support of their conspicuous, pretentious and costly position in the triple alliance.

Gen. Grosvenor telegraphs from Ohio to Secretary Foster that the Grosvenor interview on existing immigration evils, which was first printed by THE STAR and reprinted (without credit) all over the country, is "a gross misrepresentation." Gen. Grosvenor read THE NINTH STREET AND PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE. never questioned its accuracy in any respect. Indeed, he indorsed the interview to newspaper men who questioned him about it, with the purpose of sending it to their papers, if it was genuine. Now, funder pressure, be makes the customary official and prudential denial, sacrificing to the supposed necessities of his "political prospects" his word, and, so far as he can, the reputation for accuracy of a most reliable newspaper reporter. If Gen. Grosvenor | Rabuilding Sale. regrets what he boldly said about certain phase of the immigration question he ought to retract like a man and not resort to the scurvy device of blaming it all upon the reporter.

Municipal rottenness and the decay of honesty in some banks must not be accepted as a token of general public corruption. If anything is proven by the conduct of such public officials as Bardsley and the absconding and guilty president of the Keystone Bank it is that the people are too confiding and those whose duty it is to watch over the finances are careless or indifferent when not positively dishonest. If the flagrant breaches of trust revealed in Philadelphia do not arouse the public there and elsewhere to a sense of danger it is difficult to see what will be required to do so. But critical precaution is one thing and whole sale distrust another. It is manifestly unjust to honest bank officers and hurtful to the interests of a community to be suspicious of all banks because now and then a bank officer betrays his trust and creates a scandal.

If it be true, as reported, that the procurator of the Russian holy synod has just drawn up an ordinance forbidding Hebrews to observe their of their faith and to close shop on Sunday, the tyranny of the czar and the Greek church is fully as great as has been reported. But the despotism exerted is not simply over the conscience. The poor Jews are driven forth from all the borders of Russia with cruelties that were thought to be confined to uncivilized tribes and to the fierce days of persecution in the long past. From time to time denials of these outrages are published, but as there is a hegira of ill-treated Hebrews into Germany and other countries the stories received would

As far as they have been smoothed out Prof. Bryce, America's friend, smoothed out the parliamentary wrinkles in the Newfoundland matter. The people of the United States rejoice with his English and Newfoundland friends in the happy solution of a tangled question, if the matter really be solved, as is hoped not without fear. For France, it is believed, means to be disagreeable in her insistence on claimed fishing rights in the Avalon peninsula, while the spirit of the plucky islanders is with difficulty restrained.

premier may have an important bearing on the questions at issue between this republic and the ninion. We have had the profidest lot of SCOTCH designs at 25c. of many seasons in our stock this year. It is little enough for them—and we have let the price sione. But to them we have added some choice lots of 30c., 35c. and 37%c. goods. About twenty-five pieces of these and a hundred of the regular quarter goods (that are a prize to any purchaser) go on the center counter in the department.
